There is always room for beauty; memory
A myriad of lovely blossoms may enclose.

'Twas a lovely thought to mark the hours
As they floated in light away,
By the opening and the folding flowers
That laugh to the summer's day.

THE HURRI-KANE

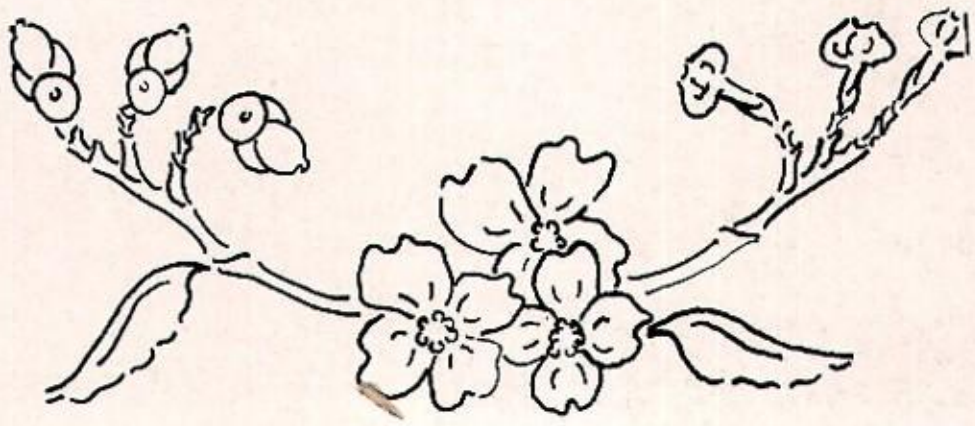
1950

VOLUME 31



Published by the Students of

KANE HIGH SCHOOL

KANE, PENNSYLVANIA

F O R E W O R D

You have looked at the opening pages in this book; you have seen the dogwood. No doubt you ask yourself, "What has dogwood to do with the HURRI-KANE whose purpose is to portray life at Kane High School?"

What is one of the first things that attracts your attention as you come toward the front entrance? Spring, fall, or winter—don't you see the dogwood?

For the past fifteen years these two trees have framed the entrance to our school. In the fall they are bright with red berries and green foliage. Then the branches become bare except for an embroidery of tight gray buds. In the spring these buds burst forth like a swarm of white butterflies fresh from the cocoon. Just as the year brings these changes to the dogwood, so school influences the life of the students that they may leave Kane High to enjoy a fuller, better life.

Health Check Up

(1) Patiently waiting. (2) Any previous illness? (3) Is it up or down? Right or left? (4) What did she say? (5) Finding out whether you're normal or not. (6) Look into the glass. (7) Who broke the scales? (8) Getting the once over. (9) No cavities! All freshmen and juniors went through this check up early in the fall. Freshmen and seniors had chest X-rays in March. Pupils up to fourteen years of age received the sodium fluoride treatment for the teeth the first week in April.

Board of Education

Seated: Joseph M. Harre, Gordon P. Hadfield, Henry H. Hennell, John V. Longshore (treasurer), Harvey G. Berkhouse (secretary). Standing: Clarence A. Leslie, Clarence E. Cornes, Charles E. Cleland. Not in Picture: Robert K. Fees.

Through another year these men have given generously of their time and energy in formulating and regulating the policies of the Kane schools.

The foods classes have become a real pleasure because of the new well equipped kitchen. The football team, too, will find a great improvement next season because of the board's plans for resurfacing and replanting the field.

These public spirited citizens also serve their community in various ways. Joseph M. Harre, the president, is news editor of the Kane Republican; Gordon P. Hadfield is owner of the Hadfield Monument Works; Henry H. Hennell, co-proprietor of the Hub Shoe Company; the Rev. Clarence A. Leslie, pastor of the Tabor Lutheran Church.

Clarence E. Cornes is manager of the local A & P Company Store; Dr. Charles E. Cleland is a well known community physician; Robert Fees, a newcomer to the board, is a pharmacist at the Temple Pharmacy.

John V. Longshore retired from the board in December after completing twenty-one years of service.

Conspicuous as white gowned graduates are the flowering dogwoods which enliven the woods every spring. Like graduates, too, the white robes the dogwood wears are but gowns to make the real flower noticeable. One should say flowers, for each four-bracted head encloses not one, but many real flowers. These are small and inconspicuous and have neither sufficient color nor odor to attract the insects necessary to aid in the pollination of the plant.

For years you have been building through educational processes to a flowering period. During this time you have been developing certain potentials. These do not show as physical features, nor can they be worn like clothes or ornaments. They are hidden within you. Like the dogwood you must make yourself noticeable so that you may be presented attractively to those who might be interested in your talents. This is one function of commencement — to announce your availability.

Once you have attracted attention to your desirability and you have gained a chance to work, it will be your task to use your latent abilities to hold and develop the position. Showiness in itself is of no value and when used without purpose may even be harmful. When, however, it is used to direct attention to the less noticeable but more durable talents which one possesses, then its use is not only reasonable but desirable.

Thomas Gray may pen, "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen, and waste its sweetness on the desert air," but this need not apply to those gifts which the world needs and you have. The Class of 1950 must have something to offer; then advertise, attractively, like the dogwood.

GLENNIS H. RICKERT

PAUL R. MILLER
Principal

The time since the wood of the dogwood tree was used by the Indians to make arrows to the present, when it is used for a superior charcoal in the manufacture of gunpowder, is not so great as is the gap between the way our great-great-grandfather spent his life and the way we spend ours. Our ancestors lived out their lives surrounded by friends and neighbors who lived nearby. Travel was a great hardship, and formal education was for the few. Grandfather came to his job through apprenticeship to a craftsman in the trade followed by his father and his father's father.

Today we hear of happenings on the other side of the world as rapidly as we hear the news of our own neighborhood and town and country. We know a vast number of people. We think nothing of traveling a thousand miles in a day. Everyone goes to school, and some even learn a great many worthwhile things.

We no longer believe that because the father was a plumber the son must naturally follow that trade. An honest attempt is being made to find each student's natural bent and to guide him in choosing the course of study which will help him to succeed in his chosen field.

The world spins along on its track, bringing each season in its turn. The leaves of the dogwood are dropping from the tree when school starts in the fall, and the dogwood is in blossom when graduation comes 'round in the spring. While the dogwood can be counted on to blossom every spring, we can only hope that our graduates have learned to use the tools for living that we are able to supply and will blossom out into happy and mature adults, contributing to the life of the community.

Rich in background, training, and experience, Kane High's faculty is definitely first rate. In addition to fulfilling their responsibilities to the students both in the classroom and in the extracurricular program, many of the teachers found time to participate in various professional activities out of school.

Principal Paul Miller is a member of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Secondary School Principals, the professional planning committee of PSEA and the district committee of PIAA. Mr. Miller spoke on the school activity program at the national meeting of secondary school principals at Kansas City, Missouri, in February.

Mr. Miller and Stuart Edwards were members of discussion groups at the PSEA Convention at Lock Haven in October.

Robert Smith represented the Kane teachers at both the district and the state PSEA conventions. He is chairman of the Social Studies Round Table for the district as well as chairman of the co-ordinating committee for McKean All-County Educators Conference.

Miss Rosana Eckman is chairman of the Central District English Teachers for revision of the English curriculum as well as a member of the state curriculum committee. Miss Eckman is a member of the PSEA Commission for Teacher Education and Professional Standards. She served as a member of a round table discussion group at the National Council of English Teachers Convention at Buffalo last fall.

Four other Kane teachers are on committees for curriculum revision, Miss Florence Allio, English; D. G. Van Ormer, science; Stuart Edwards, mathematics; and Mr. Miller, social science. The teachers of English and math are members of their respective groups in the county organizations. Miss Mary Lynn Hoover is vice-president of the Inter-County Home Economics Association, and Robert Carson is an active member of the McKean County Mental Health Association.

for try-outs for the viola section at the Central District Orchestra at Martinsburg.

All the teachers participated to some extent in various community organizations. Among these are the YWCA, YMCA, Community Chest, Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Men's Forum, American Red Cross, Women's Chorus, Study Club, and many fraternal and church groups.

Stu Edwards, Curt Ickes, Bob Williams, Matt Rausch, Gregg Turner, Bill Miller, Bob Smith, Bob Lowry, and Paul Miller were members of the volleyball team that played in the regular intramural tournament and came out on top by beating practically every other team in the school.

Cooks and Custodians

Cooks

These are the women who are responsible for those delicious lunches every day. Just think what cooking for five hundred hungry students means!

Mrs. Lee Gibson, Mrs. Mary Olson, Mrs. Edyth Urbancic, Mrs. Gladys Gibson. Not in Picture: Mrs. Velma Adams.

Custodians

These men behind the scenes are seldom seen but they are always there doing the hundred and some things that help made our school a better place to be.

Last fall these dogwood trees put on a drama all their own. First the berries turned from bright orange to brilliant red. Then color came to the leaves. One tree turned red over night while the other tree went through slower stages of changing color, but in the end both achieved that deep warm crimson that comes only to dogwood. Through our work in the classroom and our associations with each other, we, like the dogwood, complete the cycle of our high school life.

Here is a class that showed great expectations not only in their play but in everything the group undertook.

Their first accomplishment was an impressive Christmas assembly. Next they presented the first costume play in many years. However the all class party after the play gave the very successful show a happy ending.

The Junior Prom in May and the picnic a few days later gave just the right finishing touch to the year.

Sophomores

The year 1950 sees these sophomores halfway through their high school course. Plodding along through the year, this class entered whole-heartedly into the various clubs, musical organizations, intramurals, as well as football, basketball, and track.

Elaine Anderson and Cleon Cornes attended District Orchestra, and Elaine went to State Orchestra.

What will it be, sophs? A party, a dance, or a picnic?

The class paid dues to have a little nest egg for that far-off Washington trip and also began to make their plans for raising money.

The party in the spring was the one big social event, and it made a very appropriate closing of the year for this halfway class.

Freshmen

Can the freshmen do anything? The Class of '53 settled that question.

The Junior Cheerleaders were all freshman girls. Although Bob Tilburg was the only member of the class to make the Jay Vee squad, the class was well represented in the Junior High basketball, in football, and in track.

The class went out for intramurals as well as all other extracurricular activities open to them.

Susan Anderson, Bob Gardner, Bill Kness and Joyce Van Sickle came from Mt. Jewett last fall to cast their lot with the Class of '53.

Of course the big event of the year was the spring party held in the gym with dancing, games, and eats.

These newcomers to Kane High were at first somewhat bewildered with the rush of activity, but they surely did find their way around in a short time.

They participated in such activities as Jr. Red Cross, intramurals, dramatics, Small Arms, and Jr. High basketball and helped in all the school drives.

Donning the Christmas spirit, this class held a bang up party which was so successful that they immediately began to plan for a spring get-together.

Now that the excitement of the first year has come almost to an end, these eighth graders have settled down to become an active part of Kane High.

Officers plan for class get-together.

Eighth grade girls entertain mothers at afternoon tea.

Around Kane High

(1) Bookkeeping II counts the day's receipts from cafeteria.

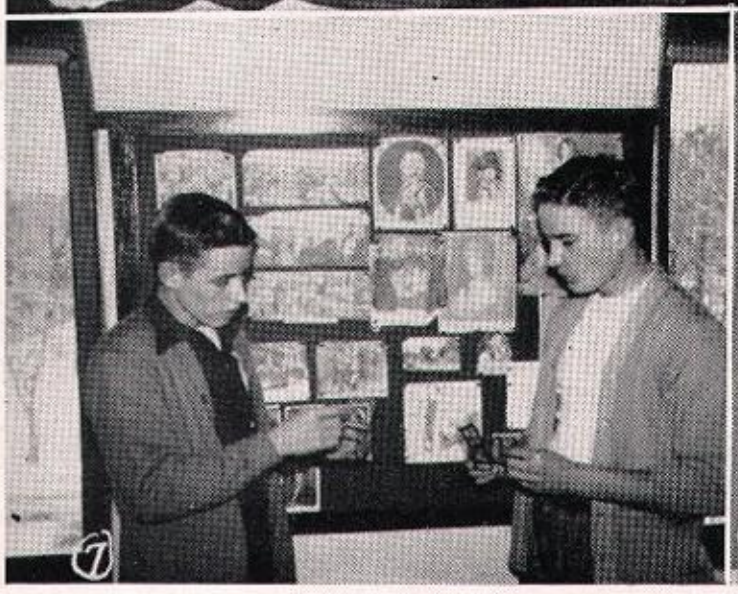
(2) Office practice girls do shorthand as Josie dictates.

(3) Typing, mimeographing and filing are all a part of a secretarial course.

(4) The girls also learn to use the dictaphone and the adding machine.

(5) Ann, Norm, Mary, and Fred work on their P.D. reports.

(6) Ken and Avis do a radio play for English III.



(7) Jack shows Van his English project — models of Chippendale furniture.

(8) "Double bubble, toil and trouble."

At Class Time

Something new's been added to brighten up the day-by-day life at Kane High. First of all the home economics kitchen was completely remodeled, and who doesn't like to work in a modern well-equipped kitchen?

Bookkeeping II class members greeted the lunch line every day since these students handled the financial end of the cafeteria. The office practice girls got on-the-job training in regular offices up town.

The junior and senior English classes changed their style. The juniors learned to think for themselves and to express worthwhile opinions in classroom discussions, and the seniors did the second semester work in committees.

Field trips became a part of chemistry and P.D. classes. The junior high boys planned and cooked meals while the girls learned to handle the hammer and screwdriver.

(1) Mona, Dick, and Dot work on the mural in the cafeteria. (2) Joanne and Gene begin work on skirts. (3) Seniors pose after completing the project on marriage. (4) Ninth graders work on magazine racks in shop. (5) Mr. Swanson shows Dave and Gale how to thread the projector. (6) Jim, Gene, and Bill toot in sectionals every Thursday. (7) The trig class solves another problem. (8) Mr. Lowry explains to Rheta and Larry how the generator works.

During the long winter months we see these dogwood trees in the sun or rain or at times covered with sparkling ice or snow. It is at this time that we notice in particular the small gray bud at the end of each small stem. Just as from this small bud life and beauty come flowering forth in the spring, so from the various clubs and activities comes the development of our individual interests and abilities.

What's behind a school? Who helps to keep it running on smooth ground? Why, the Student Council, of course. This organization, meeting every Thursday, performed its duties well every day of the year.

When the first day of school rolled around, Student Council was right on the job to help orient the new students into K.H.S. They put on an assembly to explain the things every student must know and gave a back-to-school dance to help them to get acquainted. Realizing the general lack of knowledge concerning school procedures, Student Council prepared a mimeographed pamphlet featuring the school yells, information about sports and activities, and rules and regulations of K.H.S. Each month the council also kept all students informed by placing activity calendars in each home room.

Service seemed to be the main object of the council as was seen by the drives they sponsored. These were the Red Cross, March of Dimes, and Community Chest. They also handled the money for Library Tag Day. Remembering others when we had plenty, they collected for CARE and filled White Christmas baskets.

The cafeteria committee helped to plan new menus and headed the committee for better order in the cafeteria. Everyone enjoyed the music that came from the juke box during lunch periods — Compliments of the council.

This group also served as aides for Open House. In the line of assemblies, Student Council sponsored five professional assemblies and, working with the Assembly Committee, scheduled at least two other assemblies a month.

But since all work and no play would even make school a dull place, the council adopted a "Dance a Month" as their motto. These dances included a "sox dance," juke box dances, and heading the list the annual February "Snow Ball."

Thus, the Student Council leaves behind a year of hard work and many accomplishments that add up to spell—DEMOCRACY.

Student Council Activities

(1) Betty helps bring Red Feather contributions to $46.46.

(2) Frank and Joyce display their flashy socks in the sock dance.

(3) Clarence gets $33.12 for CARE.

(4) Dancing in the holiday spirit.

(5) Remembering others at Christmas with 15 baskets for Salvation Army.

(6) Mr. Sloon shows the wonders of liquid air.

(7) Intermission at the Snow Ball.

(8) The committee discussing plans for the official Kane High handbook.

(9) Warner, Bill, and Dave open the March of Dimes boxes to find $55.00.

(10) Joyce and Margie combine their efforts to sell Merle a library tag. $51.94 collected.

The year in picture and story sounded simple enough to this 1950 Hurri-Kane Staff early last fall. As they began to draw up plans for the annual, however, they discovered the hundred and one things behind each picture or story. Publishing a yearbook, like any other activity, demands sacrifices of time and energy and a whole hearted dedication of self to the work at hand.

The Hurri-Kane office became a regular workshop as the members dropped in before school, between classes, during study halls, and after school to get assignments and check on the work.

The staff selected the dogwood for the theme partly because of the beauty of the trees and partly because these two trees symbolize life at Kane High. The artists designed the cover and made the sketches found in the opening section and on the division pages.

The all-girl advertising staff secured contracts from approximately one hundred-thirty business places in Kane. Gilda Lobock with twenty-eight contracts totaling around two hundred dollars took honors for the solicitors. These girls secured or prepared the advertising copy and had it in the hands of the printer even before the deadline.

The staff made plans for the Stokes Studio to handle the senior and faculty portraits, scheduled the sittings, took the orders for pictures, and collected the money. The Fahey Studio did most of the work with the larger groups.

Just when the staff photographers believed everything was under control, they discovered to their dismay that a roll or two of film had been underexposed, had come out blank, or had gone thru the washing machine. Dick Cox came to the rescue and is responsible for most of the smaller groups and informals.

Shirley Woodle represented Hurri-Kane at the P.S.P.A. Conference at Williamsport and brought back many helpful suggestions.

As the editors collected material, prepared and edited copy, the whole process of publishing a book took definite shape. This 1950 Hurri-Kane is the result of the combined efforts of the staff and the cooperation of the faculty and students. We hope it meets with your approval.

RONALD WEISER - Business Manager
MISS ROSANA ECKMAN - Adviser

Who's who and what's what have been found in Hi-Life for two busy semesters through the hard work and ingenuity of a large staff headed by Mary MacEwen, editor-in-chief, and Miss Rosana Eckman, adviser. Without fail the publication has come off the press twice a week to bring the latest news and views to the students and faculty of Kane High. In spite of costs of publication being tripled, students have maintained quality of the paper at no increase in subscription price.

Interest and entertainment were provided by the paper for everyone, while staff members themselves received excellent training in news reporting, accurate typing, mimeographing, and budgeting. Worthwhile character traits such as responsibility, cooperation, and pride in workmanship were developed.

A "First Fifty" column written by Jane Summersgill and Judy Zook brought to light some surprising events which happened during the half century of Kane High history. Members of the alumni were interviewed in the search for interesting incidents and personal anecdotes. This was one of the many fine columns which were enjoyed by nearly a hundred alumni and students in other schools through the work of the exchange editor, Fran Thoms.

Teen-age news hounds were on hand whenever they scented a story and many times they make news themselves. Editor MacEwen won the D.A.R. Citizenship award in Kane High School and her essay placed fifth in the Pennsylvania Week Essay Contest.

Every year Hi-Life seems to get better and better and win more awards. This year Hi-Life was again rated All American by the National Scholastic Press Association and was given first honors by the Pennsylvania Scholastic Press Association. St. Bonaventure College sponsored a contest for school publications to select the most outstanding and Hi-Life won a plaque for first place in the mimeograph field. In a nationally distributed promotion booklet, A. B. Dick Company used pictures from Hi-Life to illustrate mimeographed school papers.

All these honors with many others point out the fact that Hi-Life is one of the finest school papers in Pennsylvania, and the staff is proud to conclude the twenty-seventh year of its publication.

Scientists and Historians

Phy-Chy Club

Plastics again received the go ahead sign at the first meeting of the Phy-Chy Club early in October. Since then canasta boards, trays, salt and pepper shakers, pen holders, lamps, and bud vases have taken shape under the guiding hand of Dalton G. Van Ormer, adviser of the group.

Without a doubt the violin which the president, Shirley Swanson, made from Periglas was the most exceptional piece of work turned out this year.

The members of the club prepared and gave reports on the different phases of plastics. They studied the history of plastics and finally the art of making articles from Periglas.

The field trips included a tour of the Castena Pulp and Paper Mill at Johnsonburg, the General Electric Plant at Erie, and a visit to St. Bonaventure College.

Kahiah Club

Should the United States government be socialized? Most emphatically NO argued these American history students.

Under the leadership of Jerry Carlson, president, and Paul Montgomery, adviser, the Kahiah Club debated the pros and cons of many timely national and international problems Among these were the coal strike, what to do or not to do with atomic energy, as well as what changes should be made in the laws governing divorce.

The discussions took the form of formal and informal debates, panel discussions, and at times just plain arguments which continued even after the meeting adjourned.

The club came through with some extraordinary ideas on how the United States government should be run. Some of these no doubt will be in effect before too long.

National Honor Society

Membership in the National Honor Society is one of the highest honors a student may receive. All who become members have been judged outstanding in character, service, and leadership.

At Christmas time the National Honor Society, under the direction of Stuart Edwards, added the holiday spirit to the cafeteria and the halls.

The big moment arrived! On February 22, seven seniors and six juniors were tapped and in a candlelight ceremony were formally inducted into the National Honor Society.

On March 1 the society gave a tea honoring the new members. Parents of the members and the high school faculty were guests. The initiation dinner meeting later in the spring made the members feel really at home in the society.

Future Teachers of America

"Why teach?" This is one of the first questions asked by the eleven girls in the Mabel Studebaker Chapter of Future Teachers in Kane High. Under the guidance of Paul Miller, the members are trying to solve this question and find out if they would really like to teach and if they are suited for teaching.

The club held discussions on preparation problems and visited Edinboro, Thiel, Allegheny, Lock Haven, and Penn State Colleges. They taught when emergency substitutes were needed and visited grade schools in Kane.

Matthew Rausch, R. G. Lantz, Robert Carson, and Miss Rosana Eckman passed on to the group some of their methods of teaching and experiences in teaching.

On April 14 N.H.S. and F.T.A. honored Miss Studebaker and the faculty at a tea.

Thespian Club

Amid the smell of grease-paints, the clatter of assembling stage props, and the endless repetition of lines, these budding players came through a very successful year.

"Junior Buys a Car" a one act play starring Cleon Cornes as Junior, started off their dramatic season. This production was so well received that it was presented at Smethport for an exchange assembly in March.

The annual winter party took the form of a square dance with each member bringing a guest. This dance was the high spot in the social life of the club.

The man behind the scenes, Robert Cloos, used every opportunity possible to help the Thespians develop poise and artistic appreciation as well as creative self expression.

The club purchased make-up kits and laid plans for furnishing and financing a make-up and dressing room.

Junior Dramatics

Early in October the chatter of these excited young would-be-dramatists filled the auditorium as they began their plans for their first year's work under the guiding hand of Miss Phyllis Magargee.

Reading, studying, and acting one act plays formed the basis for the club's program. Plans soon got under way for selecting the plays to be used; then came the tryouts! This was their first real experience in seeing how people get their parts for a play.

They used the wire recorder for practicing voice control and technique. Their recorder production was "Butch." The club believed that this type of work was so helpful that they purchased a spool for the recorder as their contribution to the school.

These junior players made their first public appearance late in spring when they presented in a school assembly a mystery comedy, "The Ghost Wore White."

Senior Play

With a small but well prepared cast the seniors, under the direction of Robert Smith, presented "Papa Is All," a comedy centered around the life of a Pennsylvania Mennonite farm family.

Don Wenslow gave such a terrifying performance of Papa that he even surprised himself. Don's "somewhat" meek wife, Shirley Swanson, handled the role of the oppressed Mennonite farm woman like a veteran.

Dale Fogel livened up rehearsals with his quips about "cows to feed and chickens to milk." While Allene Johnson was not realistically portraying the meek love stricken Emma, she knittted angora socks in the wings.

Jane Summersgill, the neighborhood gossip and expert on Christmas carols, and Bill Witherow, that smoothly dressed state cop, helped bring Papa to justice and the play to a happy ending.

Junior Play

Laurels to Pat Lantz for his expert direction of the first serious drama in many years. Undaunted by the difficult, old English roles, the cast of "Great Expectations" hit their lines and lived their parts for six long weeks and turned out one of the biggest successes ever witnessed in Kane High School.

Members of the class, encouraged by their adviser Paul Montgomery, canvassed the whole town and sold 1120 tickets to pack the house for two nights. Kenny Carlson sold a record number of seventy-five tickets.

John McCandless as Pip gave a fine performance and had his extremely long part letter perfect. Jim Connelly's interpretation of the humorous, hard-working blacksmith gave the audience many laughs.

Lois Burton, student director, and Larry Andersen, stage manager, were not seen on stage but added greatly toward making the play a smash hit.

ORCHESTRA

Band

The Kane High Band under the direction of Charles Stewart stepped into the spotlight last fall as they marched down the football field in K formation. Then, too, they added that extra touch to the football pep parade, played for assemblies, and participated in the instrumental concert in May.

The willingness of the band to participate in community activities so caught the interest of the townspeople that the Kiwanis Club sponsored a talent show, the proceeds of which were to be used to start a fund to purchase new band uniforms.

Paul Larson, Stew Crill, and Pat Tigani played in the North-Central District Band Festival at Coudersport.

Orchestra

The K.H.S. Orchestra was one of the first high school organizations to appear in public when the group presented a complete program for the State Grange Convention.

Early in March the following musicians represented Kane at the Central District Orchestra Festival at Martinsburg: Mary A. Connelly, Bertha Begeny, Allene Johnson, and Shirley Swanson, violins; Elaine Anderson and Helen Popowski, violas; and Cleon Cornes, bassoon. Elaine went on to State Orchestra at Hanover.

Their assembly program and the spring festival of music showed clearly what can be accomplished by hours of practice and training under the baton of Charles Stewart.

Mixed Chorus

"Come on now! Take an excited breath and let's go!" Just as Miss Janet Burke gave the signal the Mixed Chorus, accompanied by Judy Zook or Marjorie Flockerzi, broke into "Look for the Silver Lining" or some other lively number.

The group appeared in assemblies and the girls sang for the Traditional Y.W.C.A. Hanging of the Greens at Christmas. Gloria Knapp, Alice Ansberry, Anne Weborg, and John Burdick represented the group at District Chorus at Lock Haven.

The grand finale, however, was the concert in March at which time all vocal groups participated.

Freshman Chorus

"The Heavens Are Telling", "The Pickaninny's Sandman Too", and "Little Leana and Hans" are but a few of the interesting and melodious numbers that the Freshman Chorus girls will long remember.

Any freshman girls who like to sing or who are interested in group singing may become members of this group.

Every Friday morning these thirty-one ninth graders, directed by Miss Janet Burke and accompanied by Judy Zook, spent a most enjoyable hour just singing. They became familiar with part singing and harmonizing and thus took their first step toward senior work.

All of this added up to a delightful musical assembly program in March.

MIXED CHORUS

FRESHMAN CHORUS

All Worked Together For

Stage

Two senior, two junior, and two sophomore boys under the direction of Gust Mortenson built, painted, and decorated the stage settings for school productions held in the auditorium.

Usherettes

The Usherettes, under the supervision of Miss Elizabeth Eaton, added a friendly as well as formal touch to plays, concerts, and graduation exercises.

Majorettes

Under the direction of R. G. Lantz these girls have worked to develop a knowledge of flag twirling, baton handling, and baton commanding. They hope to be Kane High's Band "front" next year.

Public Relations

Public Relations Committee kept the community informed of Kane High's activities and personalities. They also prepared and released stories for bulletins and journals.

Library Staff

The Library Assistants under the direction of Mrs. Helen Jones gained a good practical knowledge of how a library works. Their duties included checking slips, charging out books, checking them in, and returning them to the shelves.

Hall Patrol

These fellows, posted throughout halls during change of classes, kept traffic moving in an orderly manner. Dalton G. Van Ormer, adviser, and Bob Jones, captain, were responsible for the efficient work of the Patrol.

Marksmen

Junior Rifle

The first of October saw the completion of the rifle range with the installation of new lights and four new spotting scopes. A pastel green wood wall screens the backstop and discarded mats from the gym cover the concrete firing platform. The range now boasts eight firing points.

Firing away under the supervision of Gregg Turner, these fellows increased their efficiency in the use of the rifle. At the same time they developed self-control, both mental and physical.

The members fired targets for N.R.A. qualifications and six fellows completed necessary targets for the nine sharpshooter bars and for the expert classification. All active members fired the Army Jr. Qualification Course.

Robert Meckley shot the first possible for the year and the first one for the new range on January 21.

Small Arms

Safety in the use of handling fire arms is the main purpose of this organization. The students, under the careful direction of Gregg Turner and William Miller, first learn the meanings of various shooting terms and the principles of safety that are necessary on the range as well as in the woods.

Next they learn the proper methods and positions for shooting the rifle. Along with this they also work on proper mental and physical self-control.

All members of Small Arms completing the prescribed material on safety, positions, sighting and aiming, and trigger squeeze are given the opportunity to shoot the Army Jr. Qualification Course consisting of ten rounds in each position, prone, sitting, kneeling, standing. The members also are able to qualify as Pro-Marksmen of the N.R.A. Qualification Course.

When these sportsmen hear the call of the wild, they're off for the woods to their favorite trout stream, deer stand, or hunting ground.

Under the leadership of Curtis Ickes and that veteran woodsman, Tom Oliver, these boys devoted their time to the promoting of sportsmanship, learning the ways of wild life, and to the improvement of hunting and fishing conditions. This year's special project was the art of fly tying, and the club purchased all necessary equipment for tying flies for their own use.

Two discussions highlighted the year's work. Donald Miller, state conservationalist for District E, spoke to the boys on "Safety in the Woods." Robert Carson, Kane High faculty member, talked about "Animals of Australia."

During the various seasons of the year every member displayed his talents in hunting or angling. Practically every fellow got his deer as well as numerous rabbits and other small game. Now the anglers are anxiously waiting for their big chance to show the ones that didn't get away.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE

The Assembly Committee under direction of Miss Sylvia Johnson proved that action speaks louder than words with their twenty-four scheduled programs. Then, too, the committee conducted a student poll to find the type of assembly preferred.

Seated: Frederick, Miss Johnson, McDade, Miss Burke. Standing: Eck, Vanerstrom, Larson, Hess, Galbo, Banks, Mr. Rausch.

The Junior Red Cross in this its first year wrote and produced in assembly "Americans All," a playlet showing the work of Junior Red Cross, raised $57.51 in the drive, packed 30 gift boxes for overseas, and served doughnuts and coffee to the workers of the American Red Cross.

Seated: Popowski, Benigni, Flockerzi. Standing: Clifford, Manno, Newton, Andersen, Tigani, McCandless, Thayer. Not in Picture: Gayley.

DOUBLE QUINTETTE

Five boys and five girls who liked to sing purely for enjoyment organized this group under the direction of Miss Janet Burke. The boys favored "My Bonnie Lass" while the girls preferred "Green Sleeves."

Perhaps it is in the spring that we notice these dogwood trees the most. The white blossoms appear massed against the dark branches with just enough of the green leaves to make a striking appearance that cannot be forgotten. The spectacle of sports leaves with us a vivid memory of the fun of game participation and the excitement of watching the parade of athletics through the school year.

The Athletic Council is the group responsible for the well organized sports program of Kane High. Each and every member has his job which might be anything from taking tickets to using the floor mop.

The council, headed by Paul Mowery and Curtis Ickes, advisers, and Ronald Gustafson, president, handled all arrangements for the interscholastic games and paid the bills.

The addition of Robert Fees to the council as the school board representative made possible liaison between the school and the administration. The board readily adopted the council's recommendation for resurfacing and replanting the football field by A. E. Cooper of Penn State.

The big project for the year, however, was purchasing the new football uniforms. Plans are also underway for changing the constitution pertaining to junior high school athletics.

Senior Cheerleaders

We've got a T-E-A-M,
We're on the B-E-A-M,
We've got a team,
We're on the beam,
We're hep to the jive,

Coach Vic Gentilman and his many track aspirants will have their hands full in the coming season when they encounter the task of defending the District IX Title.

This year's team is led by ace miler Bud Daly, who has placed second at the State Meet for two years, and javelin slinger Pat Scordo, who took third place last year.

The returning lettermen, Daly, Scordo, D. Wenslow, Dooher, K. Carlson, L. Anderson, plus some other talented tracksters will comprise this year's squad.

Varsity

Greeted by twelve returning lettermen, Coach Bob Williams and his assistant, Matt Rausch, began their coaching task as head mentors of the Kane High Wolves. Coach Williams' plans were to maneuver his boys off the single wing, and this he did; for through the excellent tutoring of this formation, his fighting squad drove to four victories.

The wins were all by decisive margins, and the defeats handed the Wolves were no disgrace as each win for the opponents was captured only by a matter of a few points. Speed and spirit appeared to be the twin resources used to charge the well-stocked squad that was organized and equipped with battle tested "savvy".

Assistant Coach Rausch drilled his linemen into what later became a big, durable flank which possessed the necessary punch needed to open a hole for the backfield men to gallop through or to stop some hard charging opponent determined to hit the pay dirt.

The '49 season produced many highlights indeed, and the pigskin campaign was truly a successful one. Such games as when the Wolves challenged the powerful Warren eleven on the Dragons' own gridiron or when the Johnsonburg Johnnies and the Red and Blue clashed under the arc lights in the papertown helped to make the past season of football one that will live in the minds of the fans for sometime.

Coach Williams' prospects for the 1950 season include six lettermen plus some other fine material that will be in there fighting for a varsity berth. From this group of boys will be molded a team to represent the Hilltop and to join in the pigskin parade for the 1950 football classic. The coming season will be looked forward to by a large number of fans, and the favorite sport of the fall will feature many highlights.

Junior Varsity

Coach Bob Cloos can certainly be proud of his Junior Varsity fellows. Although these scrappy boys didn't post such an impressive record as their big brothers, they still showed fine sportsmanship and displayed some torrid football on different occasions. These fighting Little Wolves never gave in to their opponents, and their hard earned triumph over the Little Dragons proved that they possessed a victory punch which once landed could easily spell defeat for their challenger.

These hard working pigskin toters are definitely destined for future stardom and should aid greatly to build up a powerhouse eleven to represent Kane Hi. Local gridiron fans will see a lot of these rugged boys in football uniform next year.

Basketball

* Lettermen

Now that the curtain has been drawn on the 1949 and '50 basketball season the hard-working Wolves, under the excellent tutoring of Coach Stu Edwards, have put away their flashy cage togs plus their impressive record consisting of twenty victories and four defeats.

Coach Edwards molded his aggressive five around ace veteran, Bud Daly, plus four other members of the State Champs of '49, Fred Pearson, Don Frase, Kenny Carlson, and Pat Scordo. Besides these five he brought up Bob Magnuson, Mike Kulka, Norm Johnson, Darrell Anderson, and Ron Gustafson from the Jay Vee squad.

The season was supplied with thrills galore as Coach Edwards watched his fighting five annex their sixth consecutive Mountain League banner and also capture their third straight District Class B Title.

The Pack made their debut for the 49-50 season when they entertained the Mt. Jewett Magicians on the local hardwood. After swamping the Jewett five the Wolves fell prey to the Brookville Red Raiders in a duel which was not decided until the last dying seconds of the contest.

After defeating an erratic Punxsutawney aggregation by a decisive margin, the pride of the Hilltop fell before Coach Joe Massa's tough Warren Dragons in two thrilling over time periods.

The Edwards-coached quintet truly enjoyed the Yuletide season as they edged out Elwood City, a big Class A contender and also avenged their earlier defeat at the hands of the Brookville squad when they out-maneuvered their classy rivals to capture the game. Kane's Red and Blue were fully prepared for the return match with the Warren cagers and the Wolves creased the nets time after time in their process of whipping the Dragons.

The fighting five from Kane swept through the first half of the league schedule without a loss and thus reigned to dominate the league as a result of successive triumphs over St. Marys, Wilcox, and Emporium. Then in order to keep in tune the Edwardsmen stepped out of their class and climbed into the tough Class A competition for a crack at Coach Harold Brace's highly-touted Bradford Owls. The Wolves found the going extremely tough but still added another win to their now long string of victories. Conquests over Sheffield, Ridgway and Johnsonburg assured the Wolves of their sixth straight Mountain League title.

Basketball

The Bradford quintet broke even with the Wolves when they snapped the Kane winning streak at sixteen straight.

The Wolves once again represented their Alma Mater in the state play-offs as they defeated a stubborn Smethport five at Bradford in order to get the right to defend their district title. The wonder Wolves staged a great comeback against an outstanding East Brady team as they slowly deleted the Bulldogs' lead; and after the smoke of battle had cleared, the Wolves had a 51-49 triumph and another district title in their possession. A fast-moving Mercer quintet saw to it that there would be a new state champ this year as they defeated the Kane Wolves in a game played in the spacious Farrell gym.

The Kane High Jay Vees under the careful coaching of Bob Lowry posted a season of play similar to that of their big brothers.

The Little Wolves found Bradford and Brookville their toughest rivals. However the Wolves found the range in their tough skirmish against the Baby Dragons of Warren and by virtue of some hard playing they carried home a well-earned victory.

In league play the Wolves reigned supreme as they swept through the season without a loss and the reserves got into the contests at times. The Junior Varsity was paced by Keith Weiser's 152 tallies while his two sharp-shooting teammates, Ed Rudler and Jim Cronin, kept pace with 149 and 130 points respectively. Although Dan Sagramoso and Max MacEwen didn't score so freely as the other starting boys, they helped set up the scoring attempts for the others, and the rangy Sagramoso helped a great deal in handling the bankboards.

Kane High offers a diversified sports program to give the boys who are not actively engaged in interscholastic sports a chance for team work and individual competition. It offers a series of sports events to any person or team that wishes to participate.

This year's activities included touch football, foul shooting, basketball, wrestling, volleyball, and track and field events. As an added touch, plans were made to include horseshoe pitching and table tennis. These sports were so divided that participating teams or persons were placed in a league or group according to his school grade or weight classification.

The Gyzmoes, captained by Leonard Haight, took the Senior League title and the Fighting Irish, headed by John Migliazzo won the Junior League crown in touch football. Switching to foul-shooting, a winner was chosen from each school grade.

In basketball, LaVerne Jones's team, the Lovers, placed first in the Senior League and the Hornets copped the Junior League. The wrestling champs had to battle against boys of their respective weight classes, and Willie Brinkley won his third consecutive title after advancing to the 120 pound weight class.

Volleyball with 156 fellows participating held first place while touch football with 117 ranked second. Although wrestling with 54 fellows ranked last, it was the one activity that drew the most spectators because of its individual color.

Vic Gentilman assisted by Stew Crill and Jim Wenslow, senior and junior managers, and the one hundred sixty-eight boys participating were responsible for the fine record this year.

Girls' Intramurals

MARILYN OLSON - - Manager
MRS. ALICE TURNER - Director

The intramural program has always held an active part in the girls' athletic program of Kane High since it gives the girls interested a chance to participate actively in sports. The schedule of activities throughout the year offers a wide variety so that the girls have the opportunity of choosing and participating in the sports they like best.

The girls opened the season early in the fall with soccer. This was followed by basketball, volleyball, foul shooting (new to the program this year), badminton, and finally mushball, which was played outside and made a fitting climax to a very successful season.

The tumbling exhibition given in the gym at Open House in November was also an activity of Girls' Intramurals.

The intramural setup consists of two separate leagues, the Senior League, which includes seniors, juniors, and sophomores, and the Junior League composed of eighth and ninth grades. Each league has an individual champion team for each sport, and the leagues do not play one another.

The number of girls out for each activity varied but on an average about one-hundred and fifteen girls participated in each sport. Many girls went out for all the sports in order to get points toward a K.

The point system, which has been in use for some time, gives credit for winning, losing, substituting, and refereeing. At the end of the year the girls receiving the highest number of points are awarded the coveted intramural K's.

This program stimulates team play and develops the spirit of friendly competition.
